DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Located on a farm between Wright's Mill and Tarbutton Mill is this early 19th century farmhouse. It is composed of two frame sections, both three bays long and one room deep. Between the original brick piers is block fill. The walls of the building have been covered with aluminum siding. The two story portion of the house appears later than the one and one-half story wing, although both appear to date from the first half of the 19th century. The taller portion has an entrance with sidelights and transom on its northern bay with two windows on the south and three above. There are two windows on both storys of the south gable with chimney between. A shallow pitch 'A' roof precludes there being an attic.

The wing has a central door and two windows with two dormers above. In each of the gables is a brick chimney. On the west side of the wing is a small pod added after the building was constructed or enlarged.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Architecturally, the house is not outstanding. It is typical of small vernacular farmhouses and illustrates the growth of a family's prosperity in relation to their needs. It is like dozens of houses on the Eastern Shore.
